MINERS ON STRIKE TENTING OUT IN WINTER

5000 AND THEIR FAMILIES CAMP IN DISTANT HILLS

LIVE ON SCANTY RATIONS FURNISHED FROM UNION FUNDS

KANAWHA COAL DISTRICT IN WEST VIRGINIA SCENE OF HARDSHIPS

(By United Press)

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Five thousand persons—striking miners and their families—are encamped back in the hills of the Kanawha coal district today with a single sheet of canvas protecting them from the fury of winter storms.

Smoke poured from black pipes in the tent tops as the women folk prepared the scant rations furnished them from union funds. Sixty-two and one-half cents worth per individual per week is the union allotment. "Tent wives" find it difficult to prepare inviting meals with no more delicate groceries at hand than bread, beans, salt pork, potatoes and cabbages.

The union buys the food wholesale.

Down the valley a few hundred yards strike breakers and their families occupy the company shacks from which the inhabitants of the tent colony were evicted when they refused to work for a wage schedule which they claim is below that paid in the central competitive coal fields.

The courts of the state held injunctions granted the miners in their attempts to remain in their company-owned homes were not binding in event of a strike. Wholesale evictions followed and other workers came in to occupy the company shacks and began digging in the few mines which were able to continue operations. The strike followed refusal of West Virginia operators to adopt the wage scale agreed upon for the central fields at the Jacksonville conference.

Union officials here say suffering in the colony has been held to a minimum, despite the hardships of winter. Relief measures will continue until spring, when many strikers are expected to go to work on state highways.

BAD MILK KILLS THE BABIES OF ARGENTINE

(By United Press)

Buenos Aires, Argentine (By mail)—Half a million babies have died in Argentine during the last decade before they reached the age of two years, according to a report by the Ministry of Agriculture. It ascribes the unusually high death rate to the lack of sufficient milk and adulteration of the milk sold. It is pointed out that while the cattle industry is the chief business of the Argentine, most of the cattle are slaughtered for exportation which has resulted in a serious milk shortage.

The ministry recommended that the municipalities exercise control over milk distributors to insure pure milk. A newspaper, editorially points out that a child dies in this country, with a population of less than 10,000,000, every 12 minutes.

NO CLUES FOUND TO FIRE CAUSE

MOTHER AND CHILD BURNED TO DEATH IN THEIR NYMORE HOME

(By United Press)

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 23.—No clues to the cause of the fire which burned to death a mother and her child in their home in Nymore yesterday have been found by authorities today.

Mrs. Lewis T. Delezene and her three-year-old daughter Dorothy, were the victims.

Neighbors told the coroner both front and rear doors to the house were locked from the inside when the fire was discovered. Both bodies were nearly consumed by the intense flames.

INVITE KING AND QUEEN OF NORWAY TO CELEBRATION

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, Jan. 23.—H. M. Haakon VII, King of Norway, and the Queen and Crown Prince Olaf will be urged to attend the Norse-American centennial in the Twin Cities in June, it was learned today.

Gisle Bothne, president of the centennial and head of the Scandinavian department of the University of Minnesota, is preparing the royal invitation.

President Bothne said 300,000 persons from all parts of the world are expected to attend the centennial beginning June 6. It will be the biggest gathering of 1925, Norwegian clans from every part of the country participating, he said.

LAW LEVYING TAX ON SALES OF GASOLINE

VALIDITY OF PROPOSED MEASURE TO BE DETERMINED BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

SENATE COMMITTEE ON MOTOR VEHICLES IN A HOT DISCUSSION

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Validity of the proposed law enabling the state to levy a tax on gasoline sales will be decided by Clifford L. Hilton, attorney-general.

The attorney-general's opinion was asked today after a hot discussion on the proposed measure by members of the senate committee on motor vehicles.

Proponents of the tax contend that enactment of the enabling law would put the state in line to receive $2,100,000 federal aid annually for road building. Senator B. S. Brooks, Minneapolis, argued that before such funds could be received a similar amount would have to be raised by the state.

Enactment of the law providing for the raising of funds to match federal aid has been condemned by Governor Christianson. Several county legislators want to stop the employment of married women in non-elective public offices and schools. Such a bill will be introduced when the house reconvenes Monday night. The measure would allow married women to accept temporary employment for a total of not more than 10 days in any one month. They may be employed regularly if their husbands are invalids or unable to find employment.

Modification of the state prohibition laws will be sought in another measure to be brought before the house. Representative John J. Donough of St. Paul, on request of the Liberty league, will introduce a bill asking for enforcement of prohibition laws by federal officers only. The contention is that the state spends large sums annually through county and local police co-operating with federal authorities.

Man Who Jumped Bail 16 Years Ago Arrested, but Accuser Is Lost

Minneapolis, Jan. 23.—Minneapolis police have arrested a man who jumped his bail on a swindling charge 16 years ago.

But now that they have found the man again it will be impossible to convict him, it is believed, because the man who made the charges against the alleged swindler 16 years ago cannot be found.

John Lewiski was arrested 16 years ago on a charge of swindling John Johanson, Minneapolis, of $100. This morning police brought in a man giving his name as John Miller on another swindle charge, and finger print records in the Minneapolis police station revealed that Miller and Lewiski are the same man.

25,000,000 Pairs of Eyes Will Scan the Heavens Tomorrow Watching For the Oft Mentioned Eclipse of His Solar Majesty

New York, Jan. 23.—The attention of something like 25,000,000 inhabitants of the eastern part of the United States and Canada will be focused tomorrow morning upon the eclipse of the sun. A vast, slate-colored shadow will come skipping across the area from Duluth, Minn., to Montauk Point, N. Y., as the astronomical phenomenon visible only once every few centuries takes place.

It will be the first time that a total eclipse has been witnessed by so many millions of Americans and the last chance in more than 200 years.

Fair weather has been promised for the area of totality.

Whereas the Chinese, during the first eclipse recorded in history two or three thousand years ago, beat their drums to drive away this astral dragon that appeared to be devouring the sun, modern scientists will bend every effort to catch and record upon all manner of instruments impressions of the brief period—variously between 30 seconds and two minutes in different localities—during which the moon cuts off completely the light from the sun.

And some unnamed observer, peering through a home-smoked bit of glass or snapping at the heavens with a No. 2 Brownie, may, according to the leading men of science, furnish the information concerning the eclipse most valuable to posterity.

Science, however, is not trusting much to the layman but has mobilized as never before to study and record all manner of things. Thirteen fixed observatories, the greatest number ever to come in the path of a total eclipse, will unmask their batteries of cameras and telescopes and go into action tomorrow morning.

Science, which has made eclipses in the past the reason for most important astronomical discoveries, will not be earthbound this time. Astronomically trained observers and expert photographers will go into the air to meet the eclipse, if not half way, at least at a distance that will permit escape from the dense atmosphere near the earth.

At 9 a. m. tomorrow, hovering at a height of 6,000 feet over Nantucket Light Ship, the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles will await the great shadow that will come rushing out of the west at 4,200 miles an hour as the moon crosses the sun's face.

Two hours later at 11 a. m. after the shadow has long since plunged into the northern sea the story of the dirigible's observations will be radiocast from the world's loftiest station, NERM, in the forward cabin of the airship.

Specially trained men will handle the heavy cameras aboard the dirigible for a little group of scientists who will make a narrow platform above the Los Angeles' envelope their observation post. A test flight will be made tonight.

At other points in the east, at Poughkeepsie and Buffalo and from points around New York City other scientists will view the eclipse in airplanes in the 150-mile path of the shadow and photograph the sun and the strange "corona," visible only during the period of totality.

"PRINCE OF GAMBLERS" O'LEARY DIED

CHICAGO MAN KNOWN FROM COAST TO COAST AS BETTING ON ANYTHING

TOOK CHANCES ON HORSE RACES, PRIZE FIGHTS, BASEBALL, WEATHER, ETC.

(By United Press)

Chicago, Jan. 22. — Funeral arrangements were made today for "Big Jim" O'Leary, "prince of gamblers," who died at his home here last evening. Burial will be on Monday.

He died shortly after a heart attack that kept "Big Jim" from his place of business yesterday. It was the first day he has missed in many months.

O'Leary was known from coast to coast as "the man who would bet on anything." He took chances on everything from prize fights and horse races to baseball games and the weather and presidential elections. The odds given by "Big Jim" always were accepted as "fair" in gambling circles. He was known as a "good loser," and a "square shooter."

From the time in 1871 when his mother's cow kicked over the lantern that started the great Chicago fire, "Big Jim" has been a picturesque figure in Chicago.

His gambling house and saloon was spacious and his residence one of the show places of the South side. O'Leary was only convicted once of gambling.

BETTER TIMES FOR THE WHEAT FARMERS OF U. S.

$2 WHEAT IS VIEWED WITH SATISFACTION IN KANSAS

FARMER GETTING TOP PRICES FOR HIS PRODUCT

(By United Press)

Kansas City, Jan. 23.—The wheat farmers of the southwest who stored their grain after the harvest last fall instead of hurrying it to the market read accounts of $2.00 wheat these days with the satisfied feeling that better times are in store for them.

According to M. H. Bainer, director of the Southwest Wheat Improvement association, the farmer is getting top prices for his product these days as registered in the pit at Kansas City and Chicago.

That is, he is getting these prices if he held his grain. His margin of profit over that of his less fortunate brother who sold his wheat direct from the field is better than $1.00 per bushel.

In Oklahoma and Texas 17,000 farmers, members of co-operative growers' associations, have received $8,500,000 for that many bushels of wheat so far.

HICCOUGH GERM HAS PRETENTIOUS BACTERIA RELATION

MAY BE CLOSELY ASSOCIATED WITH SLEEPING SICKNESS GERM

MINOR EPIDEMIC OF HICCOUGH DISEASE IN ROCHESTER

(By United Press)

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 23.—The hiccough germ is either the same or is closely associated with the germ of sleeping sickness and an epidemic of hiccoughs in a community is usually followed by a scourge of sleeping sickness, Dr. E. C. Rosenow, bacteriologist at the Mayo clinic here, said today.

He made this statement as a warning to residents of Rochester. Minor epidemics of the hiccough disease have been reported here recently.

In a lecture last night Dr. Rosenow explained the methods he used in determining the cause of hiccoughs and how he isolated streptococii from the throats of human beings and infected rabbits. The rabbits were then cured by the use of a serum from horses immunized with streptococcii and encephalitis.

He said in the lecture that several persons suffering severely from hiccoughs were afforded relief by the use of the serum.

"Col. Forbes, who associated with men of unfavorable reputation, such as Elias H. Mortimer, was appointed to his post by the late President Harding," Potter declared.

Col. Forbes and John W. Thompson, late St. Louis contractor, are standing trial on charges of defrauding the government through illegal contracts to build veterans' hospitals.

TESTIMONY ABOUT SEN. EDWARDS NOT BEFORE GRAND JURY

(By United Press)

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 23.—Testimony involving Senator Edward I. Edwards in a $3,800 liquor transaction, brought out during the trial of 12 men in the Weehawken rum running scandal in which the jury reported disagreement, will not be brought before the grand jury, Prosecutor Milton said today.

Milton also said there appeared to be no ground upon which he could act against a juror who was reported to have said he would not convict the 10 policemen and two civilians "even if the evidence were piled mountain high."

INDIANA MAN ON SHOOTING SPREE KILLS AND WOUNDS

LOUIS McCLAIN OF EDWARDSVILLE HAS "WILD NIGHT" IN PAVILION

AFTER HIS RUNNING AMUCK OFCIALS FEARED MOB ACTION

(By United Press)

Edwardsville, Ind., Jan. 23.—Special guards surround Louis McClain in the county jail here today, following his shooting spree last night which resulted in one man being killed and another dangerously wounded.

McClain's "wild night" started in the Valley Park pavilion, a dance hall near Altom. After the shooting he was brought here as officials feared mob action.

The man killed was Lyndley Larrison, popular deputy sheriff of the county. The other man is Walter Baird, who is not expected to live.

The orchestra had just started the prize waltz when McClain dashed on to the floor flashing two heavy automatic pistols. He weaved through the dance crowd and started in true western style to shoot up the place.

Dancers paid little attention to the first two shots, thinking it was some new orchestral novelty. Then McClain started shooting into the crowd. His first two bullets hit Larrison. The deputy sheriff dropped to the floor, reached for his own revolver, but did not dare to shoot, owing to the dancers who surrounded him.

INCLEMENT WEATHER NOT TO HALT RADIO TESTS IN ECLIPSE

Chicago, Jan. 23. — Inclement weather, the fear of astronomers preparing to view the solar eclipse Saturday, will not interfere with radio tests to determine why the broadcasting range is less in daytime than at night, E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of the Zenith Radio corporation, and head of the National Association of Broadcasters, said.

This most perplexing problem of the radio world may be solved Saturday, McDonald said.

McDonald has installed the powerful portable broadcasting station WJAZ at Escanaba, Mich., located almost in the exact center of the path of the total eclipse.

The station, operated on a wave length of 268 meters, was heard plainly in Chicago and other points last night. It is the first radio station to operate from that part of the country.

McDonald has sent out an appeal to all radio fans to listen in on the Escanaba station for only through the co-operation of the fans in all parts of the country can the tests succeed.

They will be continued tonight and tomorrow night from 10 o'clock to midnight.

At 4 o'clock on the morning of the eclipse, the real test will get under way.

JAIL DELIVERY PLOT FALLS FLAT IN ST. PAUL TODAY

POLICE GUN SQUAD AND 40 PATROLMEN DESCEND ON JAIL

JAILER WHO WAS ATTACKED BY ESCAPING PRISONERS, PULLS FIRE ALARM

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Four prisoners who attempted a jail delivery last night made one mistake in an otherwise well made plot and are still in jail today.

Ray Cameron, one of the quartet, cut burglar alarm wires instead of telephone wires and in a few minutes a police gun squad and a squad of 40 patrolmen and detectives descended on the jail.

Saws smuggled in from the outside enabled Wylie Frizzel and Arthur Anderson to cut the bars on their cells. When Night Jailer Nick Herges came around they pounced on his back and seized the keys.

Liberating Cameron and Jack Ryan from their cells, the four proceeded toward the jail office. Cameron cut the wrong wires and the alarm was given. The men were cornered and returned to their cells.

Gordon Gitt, a narcotic prisoner, was wounded in both legs when a policeman fired down the jail corridor at prisoners who had become unruly. Three of the men who tried to escape were knocked unconscious in the battle with gun squad members.

Jailer Herges pulled a fire alarm box after his keys had been taken from him. The entire downtown fire department rushed to the jail, followed by hundreds of spectators just out of theatres.

Sheriff Wagner was questioning prisoners today in an effort to learn where the saws came from.

Bad Teeth Blamed for Bad Boys and Girls

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Twenty per cent of school children who lie and steal get that way because of bad teeth, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, Atlanta, Ga., told 10,000 dentists attending the annual conclave of the Chicago Dental society in session here.

"We go at things backward," Sutton said. "Spend more money on oral hygiene instead of Latin and algebra. Spend more on children themselves instead of on a hopeless effort to construct lives already blighted by ill health," he suggested.

"Save their teeth and you may be eliminating 20 per cent of the children who lie and steal, and then go on to more horrible crimes of attacking women and murder," Sutton declared.

Citing figures on abnormality in children of Atlanta public schools, Sutton told the dentists that 20 per cent of all adolescent morons could be lifted into the ranks of normality by proper dental attention.

"Present indications are that the sky will be mostly cloudy Saturday morning over the path of totality of the polar eclipse in Wisconsin and Michigan, also over Chicago and vicinity," the forecaster said.

TESTIMONY ABOUT SEN. EDWARDS NOT BEFORE GRAND JURY

(By United Press)

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 23.—Testimony involving Senator Edward I. Edwards in a $3,800 liquor transaction, brought out during the trial of 12 men in the Weehawken rum running scandal in which the jury reported disagreement, will not be brought before the grand jury, Prosecutor Milton said today.

Milton also said there appeared to be no ground upon which he could act against a juror who was reported to have said he would not convict the 10 policemen and two civilians "even if the evidence were piled mountain high."

INDIANA MAN ON SHOOTING SPREE KILLS AND WOUNDS

LOUIS McCLAIN OF EDWARDSVILLE HAS "WILD NIGHT" IN PAVILION

AFTER HIS RUNNING AMUCK OFFICIALS FEARED MOB ACTION

(By United Press)

Edwardsville, Ind., Jan. 23.—Special guards surround Louis McClain in the county jail here today, following his shooting spree last night which resulted in one man being killed and another dangerously wounded.

McClain's "wild night" started in the Valley Park pavilion, a dance hall near Altom. After the shooting he was brought here as officials feared mob action.

The man killed was Lyndley Larrison, popular deputy sheriff of the county. The other man is Walter Baird, who is not expected to live.

The orchestra had just started the prize waltz when McClain dashed on to the floor flashing two heavy automatic pistols. He weaved through the dance crowd and started in true western style to shoot up the place.

Dancers paid little attention to the first two shots, thinking it was some new orchestral novelty. Then McClain started shooting into the crowd. His first two bullets hit Larrison. The deputy sheriff dropped to the floor, reached for his own revolver, but did not dare to shoot, owing to the dancers who surrounded him.

INCLEMENT WEATHER NOT TO HALT RADIO TESTS IN ECLIPSE

Chicago, Jan. 23. — Inclement weather, the fear of astronomers preparing to view the solar eclipse Saturday, will not interfere with radio tests to determine why the broadcasting range is less in daytime than at night, E. F. McDonald, Jr., president of the Zenith Radio corporation, and head of the National Association of Broadcasters, said.

This most perplexing problem of the radio world may be solved Saturday, McDonald said.

McDonald has installed the powerful portable broadcasting station WJAZ at Escanaba, Mich., located almost in the exact center of the path of the total eclipse.

The station, operated on a wave length of 268 meters, was heard plainly in Chicago and other points last night. It is the first radio station to operate from that part of the country.

McDonald has sent out an appeal to all radio fans to listen in on the Escanaba station for only through the co-operation of the fans in all parts of the country can the tests succeed.

They will be continued tonight and tomorrow night from 10 o'clock to midnight.

At 4 o'clock on the morning of the eclipse, the real test will get under way.

JAIL DELIVERY PLOT FALLS FLAT IN ST. PAUL TODAY

POLICE GUN SQUAD AND 40 PATROLMEN DESCEND ON JAIL

JAILER WHO WAS ATTACKED BY ESCAPING PRISONERS, PULLS FIRE ALARM

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Four prisoners who attempted a jail delivery last night made one mistake in an otherwise well made plot and are still in jail today.

Ray Cameron, one of the quartet, cut burglar alarm wires instead of telephone wires and in a few minutes a police gun squad and a squad of 40 patrolmen and detectives descended on the jail.

Saws smuggled in from the outside enabled Wylie Frizzel and Arthur Anderson to cut the bars on their cells. When Night Jailer Nick Herges came around they pounced on his back and seized the keys.

Liberating Cameron and Jack Ryan from their cells, the four proceeded toward the jail office. Cameron cut the wrong wires and the alarm was given. The men were cornered and returned to their cells.

Gordon Gitt, a narcotic prisoner, was wounded in both legs when a policeman fired down the jail corridor at prisoners who had become unruly. Three of the men who tried to escape were knocked unconscious in the battle with gun squad members.

Jailer Herges pulled a fire alarm box after his keys had been taken from him. The entire downtown fire department rushed to the jail, followed by hundreds of spectators just out of theatres.

Sheriff Wagner was questioning prisoners today in an effort to learn where the saws came from.

Bad Teeth Blamed for Bad Boys and Girls

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Twenty per cent of school children who lie and steal get that way because of bad teeth, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, Atlanta, Ga., told 10,000 dentists attending the annual conclave of the Chicago Dental society in session here.

"We go at things backward," Sutton said. "Spend more money on oral hygiene instead of Latin and algebra. Spend more on children themselves instead of on a hopeless effort to construct lives already blighted by ill health," he suggested.

"Save their teeth and you may be eliminating 20 per cent of the children who lie and steal, and then go on to more horrible crimes of attacking women and murder," Sutton declared.

Citing figures on abnormality in children of Atlanta public schools, Sutton told the dentists that 20 per cent of all adolescent morons could be lifted into the ranks of normality by proper dental attention.

THINK WEATHER BARS OBSERVATION

ASTRONOMERS DOUBTFUL OF DOING MUCH WORK DURING ECLIPSE

(By United Press)

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Thick and overcast weather will prevail in this territory Saturday morning, thereby preventing astronomical observations of the eclipse, the forecaster here told the United Press today.

"Present indications are that the sky will be mostly cloudy Saturday morning over the path of totality of the polar eclipse in Wisconsin and Michigan, also over Chicago and vicinity," the forecaster said.

PRES. COFFMAN FOR H. S. COMMENCEMENT

Will Give the Address at the Exercises of the Brainerd High School

ON FRIDAY, MAY 29TH

Board of Education Was an Early Bird in Extending Invitation to Speak

President L. D. Coffman, of the University of Minnesota, has been secured to give the address at the commencement exercises of the Brainerd high school, which will be held on Friday, May 29th.

The board of education, at its last regular meeting, voted to extend an invitation to President Coffman at once, before all of his available speaking dates should be taken. Last year he was invited by the board for the same purpose, but it was so late in the season that he could not accept. It is with a great deal of satisfaction that the local officers announce their success in securing this speaker, and it is believed that Brainerd people will feel the same satisfaction in being priyileged to hear him.

The minister who will preach the baccalaureate sermon has not yet been selected. This matter is one which the graduating class decides but not until later in the season. The class is given the option of choosing any local minister, with the exception of the one who delivered the baccalaureate sermon the previous year.

Plans are already forming for the programs of commencement week, which includes in addition to the graduating exercises and baccalaureate sermon, class day and other events dear to the hearts of the graduates. Details of these programs will be announced as soon as they are completed.

HEALTHIEST YEAR FOR U. S. ARMY

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 23.—With four deaths per thousand men, the Army last year had the lowest peace time mortality rate in history.

Figures submitted to Congress by Maj. Gen. M. W. Ireland, Surgeon General of the Army, show that the admission rate to hospitals of enlisted men was 60 per thousand, a total of 647 men. Ireland explained that the previous year 639 men were admitted to hospitals, the lowest of all time.

"A soldier," said Patrick, "goes on sick list report very frequently, when a man in civil life would be doing business. He is not able to keep up with the men in the ranks. The slight increase over last year in admissions to the hospitals is accounted for by the amount of dengue we had in the Southern States, particularly in Texas and in the Philippine islands. Dengue is an epidemic disease similar to rheumatism, accompanied by a high fever. It is not a serious ailment; the death rate is nil. This disease, Ireland reported, put 2,000 men off duty and its death rate was two.

The death rate from injury was 1.90 per thousand.

Young Wrigley to Head Father's Big Business

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Philip K. Wrigley, just rounding 30, shortly will take the helm of the $35,000,000 chewing gum business of his father, William Wrigley, Jr., it was revealed today.

Philip's election to the presidency is scheduled for nert month at the annual stockholders' meeting.

"Nope, can't say anything right now," Philip said when asked for comment on the report.

"The annual meeting will be held next month and some one will have to be elected president."

William Wrigley, now in the west, is to take the post of chairman of the board of directors, it was made known.

Philip's succession to his father's place will make him the youngest head of a big industry in the country. He now is vice president of the company.

Young Wrigley is a graduate of the University of Chicago. Following graduation he entered his father's office and after a brief period of training, he went to Australia, where he placed the company's products on the market.

English Rule in Ireland

The conquest of Ireland by the English was a gradual process. The first step was taken by Henry II, who is said to have obtained a bull from Pope Hadrian IV authorizing him to take possession of the country. The Tudors steadily pursued the policy of taking land from the Irish chiefs and giving it to the English settlers. The final act of the union was passed and proclaimed on January 1, 1801.—Washington Star.

GROUPS OF CHILDREN TO SING

Miss Louise Barrett to Discuss Proposed Revision of Teachers Retirement Fund

The next meeting of the League of Women Voters, at the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening, January 25, will be a home talent program throughout.

Miss Rickard will have groups of children sing from the different schools, giving the audience an opportunity to compare the musical talent in the various parts of the city.

Miss Louise Barrett will discuss the proposed revision of the law that was to provide a teacher's retimement fund but which proved to be a joke so far as the fulfillment of its purpose was concerned. The new bill puts the teacher's pension on an actuarial basis. This bill is on the league's legislative program, as is, also, the bill for re-organizing the state government along more economical lines.

The discussion of the latter bill will be led by Will Bane. Mr. Bane proved himself an adept at leading discussions at the last meeting of the Whittier Parent-Teacher's Association although he had made no special preparation. Now he is to be given a chance to show what he can do if given a few days' notice. Questions and discussion from the floor will be invited at this meeting to which all are cordially invited. Members of the league are especially urged to come and bring their husbands. It is only by attending such educational meetings that the members can get the benefit of their membership fee. It is only by coming out and showing your interest that you can demonstrate the value of an organization that has for its two-fold object educating the electorate and passing necessary social legislation.

In order to allow the audience to relax, Miss Edna Anderson will give a humorous reading between the discussion of the two bills. Those who have heard Miss Anderson know that this part of the program will be very pleasing.

The music will all be at the beginning of the meeting so as to allow the children to go home. Come promptly at 8 o'clock, therefore, if you wish to hear the children sing.

The chairman of the educational committee of the league, Miss Mary Walsh, will preside at this meeting. Details regarding the musical part of the program will be given in Saturday's Dispatch.

Man's Trouble Arrested

"The past 4 years I have been going down, down, down with catarrh of the stomach and had to give up work a year ago because of my weakened condition. I suffered terribly from bloating and colic attacks. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy was recommended to me. I took a course of it and am now feeling fine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. "Old Riley Rezzdew was in here a spell ago, growling about a lost letter," said the landlord of the Petunia tavern.

"Lost another letter he was given to mail, eh?" returned Squire Ramsbottom.

"Ye-ah! He wasn't certain he had been in the hotel here, but he was trying to visit all the places he had been, and was prob'ly going to some he hadn't visited and passing by several he had visited. Somewhere around town he had lost the letter, and the last I knew he hadn't found it. As he conducts all of his business in just about that fashion, he has all the time in the world to denounce the post office for the foolish way they run their business."—Kansas City Star.

Valuable Thermometer

The improved thermometer, known as Doctor Hill's Kata thermometer, is so delicate in its construction that it can measure its own rate of cooling when its temperature approximates that of a human body. The ordinary mercury thermometer is not satisfactory for studying conditions for bodily comfort, and for that reason the bureau of mines is using the improved Kata thermometer in its study of conditions under which miners have to work.

PLANE, SENT CRASHING INTO WALL AT 100 MILES AN HOUR IN TEST BY ARMY OFFICERS, FAILS TO BURN

During experiments conducted by the officers at Wilbur Wright Field, Dayton, O., an airplane speeding 100 miles an hour crashed into a concrete wall and was completely wrecked but failed to catch fire. An old plane was used in the test, the first of a series to study the origin of fires after airplane wrecks. The crash did not result in an explosion, as expected, and the test did not furnish as much information as was desired. When the plane struck the wall splinters were hurled more than 1,000 feet into the air.

During experiments conducted by the officers at Wilbur Wright Field, Dayton, O., an airplane speeding 100 miles an hour crashed into a concrete wall and was completely wrecked but failed to catch fire. An old plane was used in the test, the first of a series to study the origin of fires after airplane wrecks. The crash did not result in an explosion, as expected, and the test did not furnish as much information as was desired. When the plane struck the wall splinters were hurled more than 1,000 feet into the air.

THE POLLS SHOULD CLOSE EARLIER

THE Brainerd Dispatch has been a consistent advocate of a change in the voting hours, permitting the polls to close earlier so as to make a correspondingly better record in making public the vote. To close them at 9 o'clock in the evening is entirely too late and 7 o'clock is a better hour.

The Minneapolis Tribune sums up all the arguments for early closing in a most comprehensive editorial recently published. There is one proposed change in the Minnesota election laws that should have the unanimous indorsement of the legislature "in principle," if not in terms, says the paper quoted. There should be an earlier closing of the polls. What closing hour should be substituted for 9 o'clock is a question on which there are differences of opinion, but at least two hours ought to be lopped off the voting day.

Never was there a sufficient reason why the polls at general elections in this state should close as late as 9 o'clock. Due to better roads and better means of locomotion, including those provided by the ubiquitous automobile, there is today no good reason whatever for keeping open so many hours.

The voting day should be made shorter in justice to election officials. It is a rank imposition to require those who receive and count the votes to remain on active duty continuously for 15 hours. Aside from the unnecessary physical exaction, the election officials cannot be in as alert frame of mind as they should to made a rapid and accurate count. The fact is that the wearying effect of the long voting day is to prolong unduly the process of making up the unofficial returns. It cannot be otherwise.

Where is the farmer, the office man or the industrial worker in this state who cannot, without great inconvenience to himself, and without interfering over-much with his every-day activities, reach the polls and vote before 7 o'clock in the evening?

Earlier closing is not a party or political proposal. It is simply dictated by common sense. No other state in the Union keeps its polls open till 9 o'clock at night, and there certainly are many other states where the accessibility to voting places is much less than in Minnesota. By extending our voting day three hours after the November nightfall, we advertise Minnesota to the rest of the country as a sort of frontier state in which there are great physical handicaps to overcome in the matter of a general exercise of the voting franchise. The state is, of course, nothing of the kind.

On presidential election night last November returns were coming in from California before anything was heard from Minnesota, and California is, in the standard time schedule, two hours later than Minnesota. Every other state but ours was being heard from. Some ill-informed persons in the East must have thought of Minnesota as a remote fastness where the long-distance courier system was still in vogue for the carrying of electiion returns. This is a mighty poor type of publicity for Minnesota, which prides itself on being a thoroughly up-to-date state in its voting facilities, its good streets and roads, its telegraph, telephone and radio communication.

COLD FOR ALASKAN POSTOFFICE

A NEWS item from Fairbanks, Alaska, says it was so cold there Saturday, 65 below, that the postoffice was closed. Fingers of the clerks got so chilled they could not handle the mail, the ink and mucilage froze in the bottles and the cancelling machine stuck, it is believed.

Sixty-five below is not such a terrible cold. The writer, years ago at Dawson in the Yukon territory, saw 68 below and was out on the trail in that weather. He had, however, precious little company, meeting no men, dogs or horses. A dense fog hung low over the mine dumps and the various air currents as they shot into the main gulch trail, seemed several degrees colder.

He froze his chin and attempting to thaw it out bare-handed, nearly froze his wrists and had to run to a nearby cabin for a general thawout. Down at Dawson the various drug store advertising thermometers burst around 60 below. At other places the enterprising owners had tacked sheets with more figures on the descending scale to reinforce their thermometers. Coal oil got thick and mushy and whisky and some patent medicines nearly froze up.

CALL ME EARLY, MOTHER, SATURDAY

EARLY risers Saturday morning will see the almost total eclipse of the sun. One should not miss it, for it will take generations before the phenomenon is repeated.

Astronomers will take observations on the ground and in the air. Radio fans will be glued to their sets to see what happens and especially to note if a new brand of static will be evolved.

Duluth is proud of the fact that it lies in the path of the total eclipse. Brainerd's view will be a partial eclipse. The eclipse itself will be but a momentary affair. However it will be most interesting to watch the heavens before and after the pall of night spreads.

A DASTARDLY ACT

THE DISPATCH has received reports that pieces of poisoned sausage were found scattered on the grounds of the Whittier school. The shreds of sausage were taken to Dr. R. A. Hallquist, who analyzed them and found they contained poison.

It is a serious offense for any one to scatter such death dealing foodstuffs in public places. The law makes it a crime and the penalty has previously been mentioned in a Dispatch editorial.

What makes the act particularly offensive is the fact that the bologna was scattered in such a public place as a school yard where children may come into contact with it.

GOVERNOR "MA" FERGUSON wants to make the smokers of Texas pay for the education of the school children. She suggests a tax of $5 to $20 a thousand on cigars and a tax of $2 a thousand on cigarets. She estimates there are about 2,000,000 smokers in the state of Texas and consequently the tax would bring in a revenue of $4,000,000 which she would have applied to educating the children.

Early Georgia Settler Picked Location Wisely

In 1835 Pickens county, Georgia, was peopled by the Cherokee Indians. In that year, one Sam Tate moved in and settled eight miles from any other white neighbor. He was first on the ground when the government moved the Cherokees out to Indian territory in 1837. He staked off his pick of the lands left by the Indians, and his claim embraced, among other things, the finest marble deposit in the United States and one of the most valuable in the world. It still belongs to the Tate family. There is only one vein of Georgia marble, and the old man got it all—a solid block three-eighths of a mile wide, four miles long and two hundred feet to a half-mile deep, the estimated worth of which today, according to experts, runs up to $165,000,000,000, and is still running. It has been worked now for more than fifty years and in all that time they have only scratched the surface of about three acres of it. They have dug out of it such buildings as the Corcoran Art gallery and the Pan-American building in Washington, the Rhode Island state capitol, the New York Stock exchange, the Federal Reserve banks of Cleveland and Atlanta, the Field museum in Chicago, the Statue of Civic Virtue in New York city, and thousands of lesser monuments, but you would hardly know it. —W. O. Saunders in Collier's.

Much Care and Taste Put Into Panama Hat

Counting the number of rings of strands in the crown reveals the quality of panama hats. The more of these there are the better the grade. Color, texture and shape are important factors, too, and if any broken straws are revealed the value is decreased, says the New Haven Register. Furthermore, a good panama hat is never bleached after being woven. Those of superior grade are the original color of the little strips of leaves from a dwarf palm-tree plant that grows in Ecuador and other South and Central American countries where the natives weave the best hats. It takes three months or more to finish those of the highest quality. All the work is done by hand and only the best and longest fiber is used.

Reports that the most expensive hats are woven only by candle light or under water are said to be erroneous. However, the straw is kept damp and at night the unfinished hats are hung where they will be exposed to the dew so that they can be worked on without danger of breaking the strands the following day.

Lottery Once Harvard Aid

In interesting bit of information regarding the early history of Harvard college is derived from an edition of the Columbian Sentinel, a weekly newspaper, printed in Boston, September 14, 1796. It states that when George Washington was President of the United States Harvard college was supporting itself partly by grand lotteries, with a capital prize of $20,000. Tickets were sold for 25 cents, says the Boston Globe.

The four-page papers of that day, with advertisments confined largely to auction sales, contained much material in brief. There were no large headlines and news from Europe, brought by ship, was often many months old. The issue of September 14, 1796, as an example, carried a news item stating that "on the 25th of June (the latest date) General Bonaparte was at Bologna."

Thieves Cart Away House

The daring and the ingenuity of modern thieves occasion frequent surprises for the police of various cities. Articles picked up and carted away range from things whose apparent value to any other than the rightful owner would seem nil, to things so huge that it would appear almost impossible to conceal them. A complaint recently filed with the Paris police by a Mme. Cabert said that her whole house had been stolen, says the New York Times. Mme. Cabert stated that she had built a house of wood in the Rue de la Caltpetriere. She was called away to visit a dying aunt and when she returned the house had disappeared.

Not Guilty

Child naivete is always delicious. Take, for example, the little girl who forgot that her mother had said she did not wish to be disturbed during siesta hour.

The child forgot and went and tapped on the door, only to be sharply reminded when her mother woke up and demanded to know who was knocking.

"It was me, mother," cried the little one quickly, "but it ain't now."

Charming Thought

It was after dinner and the talk had turned to psychology. This disturbing question had just been put: "When does old age really begin?"

To establish a formula was proving rather difficult, when one lady, who did not look her years, found the following:

"To me, old age is always fifteen years older than I am."—Cyrano, Paris.

Only Diamond Exceeds the Sapphire in Value

There is no such stone as a saphdiamond. There is a distinct stone, a sapphire, a pure gem, being excelled in value by no precious stone except the diamond. The sapphire is regarded as a variety of corundum, highly transparent and brilliant. It is sometimes colorless, or nearly so. It more frequently, however, exhibits color, generally a bright red (i. e., the ruby) or a beautiful blue—the latter being that commonly called sapphire. Purplish or greenish color indicates a flaw, and usual defects are clouds, milk spots, flakes or stripes. A sapphire largely used among jewelers is called a "reconstrucied sapphire," artificially made of hard glass (crystal) in France and Germany, and is of no value except for the work entailed in cutting and mounting in jewelry. The true sapphire is found crystallized, usually in six-sided prisms, terminated by six-sided pyramids. It is sometimes found imbedded in gneiss, but most frequently occurs in alluvial soils. It occurs in Bohemia and Saxony, but the finest are found in Ceylon. Kashmir and Burma also produce the specimens, and sapphires are found in Australia and parts of the United States. The value depends on quality more than on size and does not decrease with the size of the gem.

Oriental Carpet Makers Chant While They Work

The Oriental cannot work in concert unless he chants in concert too. And he has a wonderful ear for his own uproar. Here, for instance, on the floor were two men bending over the same pattern-carpet. One was dictating to a gang on one side, the other on the other; they were at different places, and as each bawled out a direction to his men the others were reveling in their "So let it be done." Yet there was not a mistake in either, though the carpets were only just beginning; each gang must have caught every word. At the big 57-foot carpet, of course, the directions are hardly needed; it has been a-making for many months, until the leader reels off the colors and numbers by heart, and the dozen workers, each opposite his strip of pattern, put in the stitches like automata.

All the convict carpet workers are picked men; it is not every malefactor that has the brain to take in the directions, the eye to distinguish the colors, or the hand to put them in. Such as have prize the work, for it is the only task in the central jail at which you are allowed to make a noise.—Bagdad Exchange.

Gentlemen

Perhaps these are rarer personages than some of us think for. Which of us can point out many such in this circle—men whose aims are generous, whose truth is constant, and not only constant in its kind but elevated in its degree; whose want of meanness makes them simple; who can look the world honestly in the face with an equal manly sympathy for the great and the small? We all know a hundred whose coats are very well made, and a score who have excellent manners, and one or two happy beings who are in what they call the inner circles, and have shot into the very center and bull's-eye of the fashion; but of gentlemen how many? Let us take a little scrap of paper and each make out his list.—Thackeray.

DANCE FROCKS FOR THE WINTER SEASON STUNNING

FLARED, FULL HEM-LINES ARE THE DOMINANT NOTE

FLARED SKIRT MORE GRACEFUL THAN STRAIGHT-LINED ONE

By HEDDA HOYT
(Fashion Editor of the United Press)
(Written for the United Press)

New York, Jan. 23.—New Year's Eve ushered in a variety of stunning dance frocks which will set the vogue for the remaining months of winter. Flared, full hem-lines were the dominant note and at the hotels and clubs about New York, age could only be distinguished from youth by her hem-line. Older matrons still seem to cling to the sheath-lined frock of beaded type.

The flared skirt is far more graceful than the straight-lined one when one is dancing. This year's flare begins at the knees in circular movements, ruffles, godets, etc., and the skirt is always very short. Chiffons and satins were chosen by the younger element, while the matron generally wore velvet or beaded crepe displaying clinging lines. White frocks beaded in crystal were lovely. Red corsages were those most in evidence. White satin frocks with just a suggestion of a waistline in the side-seams, attached godets of tulle at the knees to give the fluffy hem-line. Other white frocks used ostrich as a banding about scalloped hems. Geranium colored velvet was a new shade sponsored by several very smartly clad women. Among the other gay colors were light green, rose, orchid, orange and madonna blue.

Evening slippers are turning toward pastel shades, although the silver kid slipper is still the most popular. Gold kid is decidedly passe. Rose and silver brocade and a silverish blue brocade was also much worn. Several plain pumps of satin matching the shade of the frocks with which they were worn were noted. Blond satin slippers are not used much for formal evening wear with dark colored afternoon frocks. Hosiery worn with the evening slipper remains a pale pinkish shade.

The on-the-shoulder corsage appears on almost every frock. Necklines remain rounding and simple and this has brought about the popularity of the corsage placed on the shoulder. New Year's eve, however, the double corsage appeared on several frocks with one flower worn on the shoulder and one on the opposite hip.

Necklaces in Evidence

Necklaces are the most evident type of evening jewelry. In very few instances are they made of precious stones, since pearls are the popular chain and they are often as large as marbles. Clasps have grown until they are enormous and most of them have one huge imiation pearl or emerald, from which dangle many smaller strands of pearls. The pennant is worn in front.

Several of the newer type of bracelets were worn. One well worth mentioning is made in link effect, after the fashion of lover's links. Each link is set with rhinestones and while the link is very lovely, the price of these novelties is extremely low. Then there are the more popular combinations of pearl and emerald, with the dangle of pearls at the clasp. These also come from the cheaper jewelry counters of the department stores.

Whether prohibition is responsible for wearing of long wraps at the tables of the popular clubs of New York or not, one hesitates to state. At any rate there were more women who wore their wraps into these places than those who left them in the dressing rooms. Fur wraps are just beginning to overshadow the lovely brocades and Spanish shawls which were worn a week or so ago. Many women, however, wore their shawls under the fur wraps, leaving the fur garments with the check girl. Spanish shawls, by the way, are growing smaller, as many women wore those which scarcely extended to the knees.

Hair ornaments again shift themselves and we find them being worn at one or both sides of the bobbed head, rather than across the forehead or the rear part of the head. Round cabashons of pearls are pinned flat to the ears with little wisps of short hair curling over the cheeks. Small flowers are worn in the same manner.

Spring Hints

Orchid will be one of the leading shades for lingerie this season. Many Fifth Avenue windows are displaying this shade made with lace which is also dyed orchid. Orchid is popular now owing to the vogue for fushia tones in costumes. Nile green is another shade that is sponsored and peach is replacing lighter flesh shades.

Envelope step-ins are not as popular as shirt and bloomer combinations and one of the newest combinations is the long chemise, which is worn with the short step-in drawer, the two being attached together at the waistline by ribbon through eyelets.

Brassiers shaped to fit the bust are growing more popular each day. These, of course, are best suited to the small-busted person since matronly figures are best fitted with the brassiere-corset combination of one piece.

Persistency Won Throne

Jane Seymour, who, as the third wife of Henry VIII, was queen of England, had been lady in waiting for the two preceding wives of Henry—Catherine of Aragon and Anne Boleyn. She married Henry the day after Anne Boleyn was executed. She died in October, 1537.

Ethel Daniel's "Daniel Den" Noted for Two Kinds of Art

REVERSING Horace Greeley's famous advice to the younger masculine sex, Miss Ethel Daniel, advertising artist, left Denver and went East—to New York. That she found success much more cordial than it is often reputed to be to newcomers may be seen from the fact that almost immediately she had to have larger studio quarters.

Miss Daniel is also noted for the artistry of her hospitality. At informal suppers in her studio, a delightful feature is the apple dumplings which she makes herself. Because her studio is known as the Daniel Den, her friends have christened these "Daniel Den Dumplings." The recipe is as follows:

5 Apples
4 tablespoonfuls Crisco
2 cupfuls Flour
2 teaspoonfuls Baking Powder
½ teaspoonful Salt
¾ cupful Milk
Sugar
Cinnamon

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Work in Crisco with finger tips, add gradually milk, mixing with knife to a nice dough. Roll ⅛ inch thick, cut into squares and lay in center of each an apple, pared and cored. Fill up centers with sugar and cinnamon and take corners off the dough and pinch together. Place in greased baking pan, dot over with sugar and Crisco and bake in moderate oven for twenty-five minutes or till nicely browned. Serve hot in milk. Sufficient for five dumplings.

COULDN'T FIND DONKEY IN DETROIT FOR NOBLE DON

(By United Press)

Detroit, Jan. 23.—Detroit—the Motor City of the world—has one claim to fame—it's also donkeyless.

None other than Madame Pavlowa is authority for this.

When the curtain rose for the first act of "Don Quixote," the majestic but befuddled cavalier, whose name titles the performance, appeared astride the raw bones of a shopworn cart-horse. The audience wondered if Mme. Pavlowa wished to renovate the play for their edification.

Could they have glanced behind the scenes there would have been no apprehension on Madame's willingness to conform to custom.

"What do you think," said Madame Pavlowa, "Detroit is a donkeyless city. It is the first time it happens in America, not nowhere in the city could we find a donkey. Every city we visit, we have no difficulty in obtaining a donkey. But in Detroit—hein—motor-cars is all one sees. For two days before we opened our performance here, the manager hunted for a donkey. Everywhere he asks, 'A donkey for one night, please it is very urgent.' But he comes to me one hour before the performance and gives the bad news 'Madame,' he says, 'I have look everywhere. But a donkey?—Bah—It is impossible.'"

Not very long before the performance was scheduled to start, one of the manager's assistants informed him that one which might answer the purpose was tethered in the alley in the rear of the theatre. The manager's face relaxed as the probability of the hunt for a donkey became apparent. He rushed to the alley and there, pawing the snow, was a Shetland pony.

"Um," exclaimed the stage manager, skeptically surveying the animal with a discerning eye. "I'm not so sure, Madame will have to be consulted."

The pony was brought in to Mme. Pavlowa. She gave the inoffensive pony just one look. "His ears—impossible! No—better a horse."

Peter was then brought in and Mme. Pavlowa, seeig in him a good likeness, cast him for the roll of Rosinante.

FAIL TO FIND RIGHT POISON FOR BOLL WEEVIL

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 23.—The cotton boll weevil is causing experts of the Army Chemical Warfare service many sleepless nights.

Seeking a chemical with which to destroy the boll weevil and prevent destruction of cotton crops, the Chemical service has utilized 30,000 of the insects and tried out more than 200 different chemicals. But still no destroyer has been discovered.

At the present time more than 17,000 boll weevils are being held in cold storage for experiments in hothouses in South Carolina.

Investigations of possible chemical destroyers will continue, according to Brig. Gen. Fries, chief of the service, until 600 chemicals are experimented with.

"After these experiments," said Fries, "we will begin the facts as to whether or not they injure the cotton plant, and whether raw materials are sufficiently available to be manufactured in proper quantities, and also the matter of distribution on the cotton plants.

"Our greatest difficulty is getting a powerful chemical into the boll weevil so he will die. The young weevil is always inside of the cotton bolls doing his work where we cannot reach him with a spray.

"The weevil hibernates in the winter in old stalks of cotton and lays its eggs in the puncture on the inside. These eggs hatch out in there before the cotton is mature. They multiply with extraordinary rapidity. The possibilities are for 12,000,000 in one year from one pair of boll weevils.

"The only way that question can be handled is to get a poison on the plant or on the weevil that will kill it before it lays the eggs. There is not any way we can figure out by which we can get inside the boll and kill the eggs or the worm that eats the raw fibre. That is what we are working on now, to get a chemical that will kill the boll weevil before it lights on the plant and before it lays its eggs."

Sally's Sunset

By J. R. McCARTHY

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

YOU couldn't exactly have called Sally Rinker an adventurous girl, but at least she was venturesome enough to leave a practical pair of parents in an Ohio city and go to Los Angeles to teach school.

One memorable evening Sally, alighting at the Utah avenue station, found sea and sky and mountain a flaming riot of color.

Sally, lips ajar, white teeth gleaming, watched breathlessly. The colors faded, died. Only then did Sally notice that by her side stood Joseph Weston, one of her three persistent admirers.

But Joseph Weston, whose small income had made him a loafer, had hardly stepped across Ocean avenue when Sally, rounding a palm tree, found herself looking down upon Professor Milton Strop, the English teacher. Professor Strop was famous in professional circles for two things. The first was his seemingly hopeless devotion to Sally Rinker, and the second his bent for writing verse. Just now he was humped over a pad.

"What's up professor? Or rather, what's down?"

The poet jumped and bowed. "Not much down yet, Miss Sally. Just three lines. I'm trying to make a song of that sunset."

"Bully for you," cried Sally. "I've just told Joseph Weston I'd do most anything for the man who put that glory into a song. That goes with you, too."

"Fine, Miss Sally. Wonderful! I must make my effort perfect. Will you give me two months?"

"Two months it is,' said Sally.

It was a day or two later that Pete Bell, the realtor, rushed up to Sally as she stepped from that trolley.

"I hear you are going to marry the man who puts last Monday's sunset into the most fitting song. Is that right?"

"Well, Pete," she admitted. "I didn't say exactly that. I said I'd do anything, though, and I suppose that gave your friends Joseph Weston and Professor Strop a chance to make some rash statement about marriage. But you, poor Pete, couldn't make a song with six rhyming dictionaries and a book of rules."

"Nevertheless, Sally, count me in the contest. Give me three months."

"Three months? It'll take you three years Pete; and then I have my doubts. But three months you shall have."

A week before his allotted time was up, Joseph Weston met Sally in Palisades park.

Joseph sought out a bench overlooking the Pacific. "Here we are, Sally. It's only four lines, but it's a masterpiece." With great ceremony he thrust an elaborately scrolled sheepskin into her hands and she read Joseph Weston's lines with some trepidation.

The sun went down in glory in the sea,
All golden were the mountains and the skies;
But what's a sunset miracle to me,
Unless I see it in my Sally's eyes?

Sally couldn't help laughing. "You lazy rogue," she scolded him, "you haven't written about the sunset at all."

On the last day of his two months' grace, Professor Strop bowed to Sally as she entered the park.

"You look awfully serious, Professor. You must have written an epic."

"It isn't too long," answered Professor Strop, dolefully. "That's just the trouble.

Sally was touched, though she had to laugh. "All right, three lines are enough, if they're the right ones. Read them!"

Sonorously, the professor read:

How royally, his daily labor done,
Unto his gilded palace rides the sun.
His gates are clouds, with golden pillars wide—

"And that, Miss Sally, is as far as I could get."

Sally let him off gently. "It's a good start," she said. "And besides, you haven't much competition so far."

But three weeks later, when the prosy but business-like Pete Bell met her at the station and thrust a bundle of papers into her hands, Sally received the shock of her life.

"Why," said Pete, "that's free verse."

"You explain it to me," she said.

"All right, hop in," Pete held open the door of his car. "I'll explain it as we go."

"I'm ready," said Sally, almost tearfully. "Explain that free verse of yours. It looks more like arithmetic then poetry to me."

"Quite right, Sally. And here you are: Here's what those figures and diagrams mean. Just take a look from the roadway, and then step onto the porch."

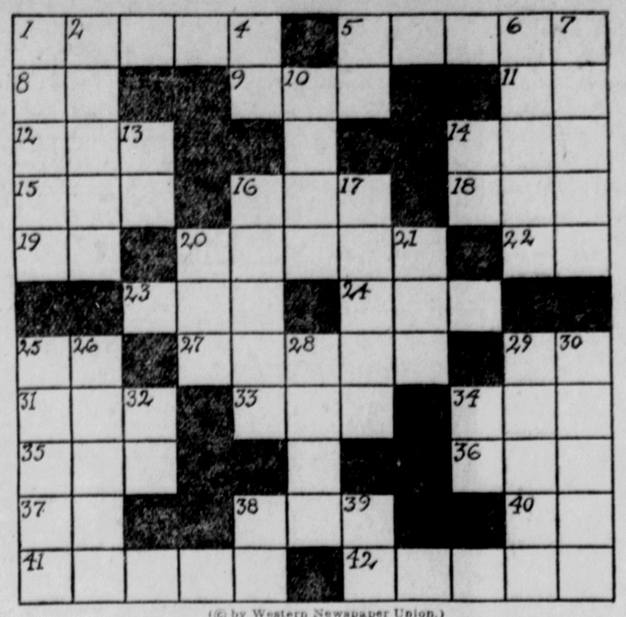

Sally looked at the prettiest little bungalow she had ever seen. Then she stepped upon the porch. Pete waved a hand toward the ocean. "There's your music down there," he said, "and this is your song, here. Like 'em?"

But what Sally had to tell him didn't require words.

Buggy Riding And Vital Statistics

It isn't so long ago that buggy-riding was vital statistics. Any country editor could tell you that it was only a step from a buggy-ride to coupling two names under the one heading "Married." And he will also admit, with a sigh as he looks back on the buggy-rides of his youth, that the automobile will never take the place of the one horse-power shay as a vehicle of romance. If you call his attention to the number of cars that are parked in dark lanes of a summer night, he says truthfully that such scenes have little if anything to do with marriage, whereas the girl you took for a buggy-ride was always the kind of girl you weren't ashamed to be seen with.

However, for those who find romance in things quaint and outmoded, the buggy still exists in certain parts of this land. There are farming backwaters whose ignorant inhabitants think jazz is a patent medicine and don't know that a horse's proper place is in a historical museum. Now showing at the Lyceum.

New Field for Women Shown in "Tiger Thompson," Carey's Latest

With the modern American women clamoring for "equal rights," it is not surprising that the business world is being invaded by members of the fair sex. Nearly every field of industry is beginning to show the effect of the feminine touch.

There's one branch of business, however, that women do not hasten to enter. You seldom hear of lady ranchers.

By "Tiger Thompson," Hunt Stromberg's third Harry Carey production, which comes to the Lyceum theatre for Saturday only the world will be well informed on this subject, for the heroine, instead of being the usual school teacher or debutante from the East, is "boss of the Square Bar X."

My Books Immoral? Never!—Elinor Glyn

Elinor Glyn makes an interesting reply to those critics who have attacked her writings as being immoral. The picturization of her novel, "His Hour" comes to the Lyceum theatre Sunday. It follows her screen version of "Three Weeks."

"I have often been condemned as an immoral writer," says Mrs. Glyn.

"That is not American justice, and I challenge anyone to carefully read every word of 'His Hour,' or any other story I have written with an open mind, not with the determined idea to search for sensualities, and then see if he can find a single sentence taken with its full context and meaning, which can degrade—a single insinuation that is base or dishonorable—a single place where my heroes and heroines do not act as ladies and gentlemen of breeding."

What Is It Keeps "The City That Never Sleeps" Awake?

No, this isn't a joke!

The new James Cruze Paramount production, "The City That Never Sleeps," now at the New Park theatre, is a story of New York, Broadway and the Bowery.

"Why the title?" you say. That's it! How about a trip down to the New Park to see just what it is that keeps "The City That Never Sleeps" awake.

The story, an adaptation of "Mother O'Day," by Leroy Scott, is one of mother-love, romance and intrigue and features Ricardo Cortez, Louise Dresser, Kathlyn Williams and Virginia Lee Corbin in the leading roles.

Four Vaudeville Acts at New Park Tonight

The New Park will present four big vaudeville acts and the "special" picture "The City That Never Sleeps" tonight at popular prices.

Rudolph Valentino and Nita Naldi in Rex Beach's 'A Sainted Devil' A Paramount Picture

"A Sainted Devil," New Valentino Production for Paramount, New Park on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"A Sainted Devil," a Joseph Henabery Production for Paramount, starring Rudolph Valentino, will be the feature at the New Park for 3 days. The story is an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the popular magazine serial, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach. Nita Naldi, Helen D'Algy, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky Raphael Bangini, George Siegman and Jean De Val have prominent supporting roles.

The story os one of a handsome young South American of wealthy parents whose bride is stolen from him on his wedding day. Don Alonzo (Valentino) swears revenge on the bandits.

After a two year search Don Alonzo frequents a dive in Buenos Aires where he is known as "the mysterious stranger!" He cares for no one—just seeking one man and waiting and hoping for some word from his bride.

And when at last the culprit does turn up! There's enough fast-moving action in these scenes for a dozen pictures.

New Scientific Discovery In Glandogen

Many leading authorities and scientists have proved by actual tests, that the benefits of gland transplantation may be obtained by giving the patient gland substance to be taken internally, rather than by operation.

Dr. Arnold Lorand says in his book, "Old Age Deferred," in speaking of the glands: "We must insist upon the enforcement of their functions, if changed by age or disease, by means of extracts obtained from the similar organs of healthy young animals."

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, prepared in tablet form provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen, for men and women, is obtainable at Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Co.—Advt.

Buggy Riding And Vital Statistics

It isn't so long ago that buggy-riding was vital statistics. Any country editor could tell you that it was only a step from a buggy-ride to coupling two names under the one heading "Married." And he will also admit, with a sigh as he looks back on the buggy-rides of his youth, that the automobile will never take the place of the one horse-power shay as a vehicle of romance. If you call his attention to the number of cars that are parked in dark lanes of a summer night, he says truthfully that such scenes have little if anything to do with marriage, whereas the girl you took for a buggy-ride was always the kind of girl you weren't ashamed to be seen with.

However, for those who find romance in things quaint and outmoded, the buggy still exists in certain parts of this land. There are farming backwaters whose ignorant inhabitants think jazz is a patent medicine and don't know that a horse's proper place is in a historical museum. Now showing at the Lyceum.

New Field for Women Shown in "Tiger Thompson," Carey's Latest

With the modern American women clamoring for "equal rights," it is not surprising that the business world is being invaded by members of the fair sex. Nearly every field of industry is beginning to show the effect of the feminine touch.

There's one branch of business, however, that women do not hasten to enter. You seldom hear of lady ranchers.

By "Tiger Thompson," Hunt Stromberg's third Harry Carey production, which comes to the Lyceum theatre for Saturday only the world will be well informed on this subject, for the heroine, instead of being the usual school teacher or debutante from the East, is "boss of the Square Bar X."

My Books Immoral? Never!—Elinor Glyn

Elinor Glyn makes an interesting reply to those critics who have attacked her writings as being immoral. The picturization of her novel, "His Hour" comes to the Lyceum theatre Sunday. It follows her screen version of "Three Weeks."

"I have often been condemned as an immoral writer," says Mrs. Glyn.

"That is not American justice, and I challenge anyone to carefully read every word of 'His Hour,' or any other story I have written with an open mind, not with the determined idea to search for sensualities, and then see if he can find a single sentence taken with its full context and meaning, which can degrade—a single insinuation that is base or dishonorable—a single place where my heroes and heroines do not act as ladies and gentlemen of breeding."

What Is It Keeps "The City That Never Sleeps" Awake?

No, this isn't a joke!

The new James Cruze Paramount production, "The City That Never Sleeps," now at the New Park theatre, is a story of New York, Broadway and the Bowery.

"Why the title?" you say. That's it! How about a trip down to the New Park to see just what it is that keeps "The City That Never Sleeps" awake.

The story, an adaptation of "Mother O'Day," by Leroy Scott, is one of mother-love, romance and intrigue and features Ricardo Cortez, Louise Dresser, Kathlyn Williams and Virginia Lee Corbin in the leading roles.

Four Vaudeville Acts at New Park Tonight

The New Park will present four big vaudeville acts and the "special" picture "The City That Never Sleeps" tonight at popular prices.

Rudolph Valentino and Nita Naldi in Rex Beach's 'A Sainted Devil' A Paramount Picture

"A Sainted Devil," New Valentino Production for Paramount, New Park on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

"A Sainted Devil," a Joseph Henabery Production for Paramount, starring Rudolph Valentino, will be the feature at the New Park for 3 days. The story is an adaptation by Forrest Halsey of the popular magazine serial, "Rope's End," by Rex Beach. Nita Naldi, Helen D'Algy, Louise Lagrange, Dagmar Godowsky Raphael Bangini, George Siegman and Jean De Val have prominent supporting roles.

The story os one of a handsome young South American of wealthy parents whose bride is stolen from him on his wedding day. Don Alonzo (Valentino) swears revenge on the bandits.

After a two year search Don Alonzo frequents a dive in Buenos Aires where he is known as "the mysterious stranger!" He cares for no one—just seeking one man and waiting and hoping for some word from his bride.

And when at last the culprit does turn up! There's enough fast-moving action in these scenes for a dozen pictures.

New Scientific Discovery In Glandogen

Many leading authorities and scientists have proved by actual tests, that the benefits of gland transplantation may be obtained by giving the patient gland substance to be taken internally, rather than by operation.

Dr. Arnold Lorand says in his book, "Old Age Deferred," in speaking of the glands: "We must insist upon the enforcement of their functions, if changed by age or disease, by means of extracts obtained from the similar organs of healthy young animals."

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, prepared in tablet form provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Glandogen, for men and women, is obtainable at Johnson's Pharmacy and Economy Drug Co.—Advt.

BRAINERD BUILDING & LOAN ASSOCIATION

S. R. Adair Elected President, E. L. Dahl and John Carlson Vice Presidents

WM. NELSON SECRETARY

H. P. Dunn is Treasurer and Walter F. Wieland Association Attorney

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Brainerd Building and Loan Association was held on Thursday evening in the farmers room at the court house. John Carlson, William Nelson and R. L. Geist were elected directors for terms of three years.

Immediately following the stockholders meeting the directors met and elected the officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President—S. R. Adair.
First Vice President—E. L. Dahl.
Second Vice President—John Carlson.
Secretary—Wm. Nelson.
Treasurer—H. P. Dunn.
Attorney—Walter F. Wieland.

President Adair gave a very comprehensive resume of the past year's activities of the building and loan association. This report gives such an excellent idea of what has been accomplished that it is given herewith:

"In reviewing the functions and duties of a building and loan association, we must first take up its duty to its investors. It much furnish them with good and sufficient security for their investments, and in this connection we point with pleasure to the auditing committee's report which shows that we have loaned to December 31st, 1924, $34,625, for which we hold first mortgage securities, valued by our own appraisal committe at $77,536.

We further owe the investors a fair return on their investments. Again we refer to the auditing committee's report, which shows a dividend of 6¼ per cent after paying operating expenses and setting aside in the emergency fund 5 per cent of the earnings. I prophecy that the association will increase its dividend in 1925 to 6½ per cent.

Our duty to the borower: We must furnish him with a plan whereby he can build and own a home on terms that he can meet, and at a reasonable rate of interest. Our Class A plan allows a borrower to pay a loan of $1,000 at a monthly payment of $5 on the principal and $6 per month interest, a total payment of $11 per month, (small house rent) and own his home in 13 years.

In Class B plan, the payment is $10 on the principal and $6 interest, a total of $16 per month, and own his own home in 6½ years.

We further owe the community a safe plan for monthly savings. This duty is taken care of by our Class A and Class B installment investment stock plans. Class A provides for the monthly payment of $5 and in 13 years $1,000 is saved. Class B provides for a monthly payment of $10 and in 6½ years $1,000 is saved.

I sometimes wonder if the people of Brainerd realize what our association really means to this community. In the two years and seven months of its existence it has helped to build 22 homes in our city. The taxable value of these homes is $29,860. The increased taxes payable on them in 1925 will be $2,687.40. Every home built increases the valuation of the city and reduces the taxes paid by the other property owners.

The first twenty days in this month we sold $4,200 worth of stock mostly unsolicited. This leads me to believe that we are being recognized and are gaining the confidence of the citizens. I am pleased with the steady growth of our organization, which started with resources of $3,500 and now has resources of $34,625.

As an attainment for us to work for, I am quoting from the 1924 statement of an old loan and building association of Omaha, Nebraska, organized in 1883: Resources $33,367,779.46. They paid in dividends last year, $1,516,995.38 and their receipts were $21,997,853.66. They have 41,807 shareholders.

"May we continue to grow as fast as Brainerd needs us."

NOTICE

DOG POISONING RIFE IN BRAINERD

Dog Owners Warned to Keep Their Dogs Muzzled or at Home

POISONED FOOD SCRAPS FOUND

Dogs Recently Poisoned Belonged to Miriam Michael, Mrs. E. T. Fleener, R. W. Bush

Dog owners of the city are warned to keep their dogs muzzled or at home, as a number have been poisoned in Brainerd recently.

Dr. R. A. Hallquist, veterinarian, states that a little boy brought him a piece of bologna sausage, picked up on the Whittier school grounds, which contained strychnine, and which showed evidence of dogs' teeth

The city nurse was notified, and she took the matter up with the teachers in the various schools, who instructed the children to destroy any pieces of food, especially meats, which they might find. The police also were notified, and hope to put a stop to the practice of poisoning animals. The law provides a severe penalty for this offense.

The latest victim of this poisoning was that of Tam, a collie dog belonging to Miriam Michael. Tam lost his life on Wednesday, much to the sorow of his mistress.

A fine collie belonging to Mrs. E. T. Fleener was poisoned on Saturday. Others included pets owned by John Bailey, on North Broadway, several in Northeast Brainerd.

A dog belonging to R. W. Bush, Fir street, was poisoned, but medical aid was received in time to save it. In many cases, however, the dogs are dead before it is known that they have been poisoned.

If the dogs are kept at home, or are muzzled, the danger from poisoning is practically eliminated, and Dr. Hallquist advises this action.

U. S. BOYS NEED BETTER TRAINING—NURMI

NURMI TELLS HOW TO RUN FAST

(Editor's Note: Nurmi, Finn, greatest runner of the generation and probably one of the greatest in history, both knows how to run and how to tell others the best running methods. Henry L. Farrell, United Press sports editor, first met Nurmi at the 1920 Olympic Games at Antwerp, and renewed the acquaintance at the Paris Games in 1924. Of course, they had a reunion when the fast Finn came to the United States this year and broke three records the first time out. Farrell got a lot of dope from Nurmi on running and especially on the making of runners. With track events in every high school and college program, there is naturally greatest interest in the oldest form of human competition. Farrell has written three stories which give Nurmi's ideas of track training. The first one appears today.

(CHAPTER I.)

New York, Jan. 23.—American athletic officials, with the nation's future in Olympic competition at heart, have been greatly concerned about the decline in the class of middle distance runners. The American team failed to win a single distance event in the Olympic games at Antwerp in 1920, and the showing made in Paris last summer was just as bad. The United States, it would seem from Olympic records, has turned into a nation of sprinters.

The failure of American athletes to win any races at distances more than 200 meters not only is considered as a grave menace to the future success of American Olympic teams, but it is regarded as an equally serious indication that the virility of the American youth is not up to the standard of youngsters in foreign countries.

It does not follow that American schoolboys are falling into the class of weaklings because their older brothers can't survive the test of a fast mile or the punishment of a marathon, but it does indicate that something is responsible for the lack of runners like Sheppard, Jones and other stars of yesterday in the current class of athletes.

Considering the natural advantages that the United States has over a little country like Finland, in an elaborate and perfect educational system, in better economic conditions which enable boys to play more than boys in other countries and to learn how to play from the instruction of skilled coaches, it is strange that distance running has become such a lost art in this country.

American coaches have been searching for the cause of it and trying to find the solution for a problem that they consider to be annoying if not more serious. It is not flattering to lack a comeback when an Englishman or a Finn says: "You fellows can sprint, but when it comes to real running, you're not there."

Walter Christie, track coach at the University of California, and one of the most competent men in his profession, is one of several authorities who blame the decline of distance running in the United States upon the automobile.

Christie points out that a youngster will not walk two blocks if he can grab a ride and that an automobile in the family garage has consigned running shoes to the ashcan. He has found in his experience that practically all of the young college students who report for the track squad are more eager to do a hundred yards in "nine four" than they are in making a new record for a mile. There is too much of the element of hard work in becoming a miler.

There are other authorities who do not agree with this theory. Some believe that the form and style taught by American coaches is obsolete and that the Nurmi style of almost flat-footed running is the best.

"This talk that the United States never will have good distance runners again does not hold good with me," Ernie Hjertsberg, former American coach, said. "There are runners in this country now that could become just about as good as Nurmi if they really wanted to." Hjertsberg is a Swede who lived in this country for years. He coached the Swedish Olympic team in 1920, and was in charge of Holland's team last year.

Nurmi ought to have some good ideas on the subject and his opinions should carry considerable weight. Nurmi is generally regarded as the greatest runner that ever lived. He won four events for Finland in the Olympic Games at Paris last summer and broke three records. He came to this country with a great reputation recently and lived up to it by making two new records officially and one unofficially, the first time he had ever competed on a board track.

He has established records almost at will and many authorities believe that he has never really extended himself. He said when he arrived in this country that his big ambition was to run a mile in 4:06, and there is little doubt that he wil be able to do it some time. "That fellow is good enough to run a mile in four minutes," a prominent coach said the night the Finn star made his American debut.

Nurmi believes that Americans are to be considered as distance runners in the future. He does not feel that Americans are not strong enough or that they lack the endurance to run long races.

"There are a number of fine distance runners in the United States," Nurmi said. "Ray, Connolly and Hahn are three of the finest milers you can find in any country. I believe, however, that there would be more better distance runners in this country if training methods were changed. The idea followed by American boys when they start running is wrong. When you start wrong you waste time that never can be recovered and more harm than good is accomplished. It is almost impossible to get a matured runner out of a bad form that he cultivated when he started to learn the game."

SOME OF NURMI'S IDEAS ABOUT TRAINING AND LIVING WILL BE CONTINUED TOMORROW IN A SECOND CHAPTER.

Hoppe Injured in Fall; Cue Training is Halted

New York, Jan. 23.—Willie Hoppe world's balk line billiard champion, has been forced to put away his cue for at least a week as a result of a fall on the ice, which cut a gash an inch long on his right elbow. He has been forced to stop training for the defense of his title in the championship tournament starting Feb. 23 in Chicago.

BRAINERD GIRLS TO CLASH WITH RIVERTON QUINT

SNAPPY GAME PROMISED, TEAMS IN TOP-NOTCH FORM

PRELIMINARY FOLLOWED BY BOYS GAME, AITKIN VS BRAINERD

The Brainerd girls basketball team will meet the Riverton girls this evening at the high school auditorium, and a snappy game is promised, for both teams have been practicing hard and are said to be in top-notch trim.

Under the coaching of the Misses Larson and Jorandby the local girls will be keyed high for tonight. They made an excellent showing when they defeated the Crosby team not long ago, and the game this evening promises to be even better, for Riverton has a very fast team.

With Turner and Michael as forwards, the locals expect to run up a high score. Both girls possess a basket-shooting eye, and much is expected of them.

Iva Trask will need watching on the part of her opponent, for as center she is always certain to get the tip-off. Helen Beggs, her running mate, is sure to keep her opponent traveling.

In girls' basketball, the guard's position is no easy job, and the local coaches have succeeded in turning out guards in Reuter and Storm who are capable of handling these difficult posts. Riverton is sure to find in these girls a stone wall.

The girls appreciated the support given them at the last game by Brainerd people, and hope that as many or more will turn out for the game tonight. Support from local people goes a long way toward helping a team win its game.

Los Angeles, Jan. 23.—Trial of Tony Fuente and Fred Fulton, heavyweights, and their managers, Fred "Windy" Winsor and Jack Reddy, today was again postponed, this time until January 30. ELIMINATION RACE FOR COMPETITORS IN BALLOON RACE

(By United Press)

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 23.—The annual elimination race to determine what balloons are to be America's entries in the international balloon race, will be May 1, Carl Wolfley, governor of the National Aeronautic Association, announced today.

The race will start from St. Joseph. At least eight balloons are expected to enter.

Dodgers Silent

New York, Jan 23.—Officials of the Brooklyn baseball club would not comment upon the report that Wade Killifer, manager of the Seattle Pacific Coast league pennant winners, had been offered a $15,000 contract to manage the Robins.

Nurmi and Ray at Start of Chicago Race in Which Flying Finn Shattered Another World's Record

After a record-breaking performance in New York City, Paavo Nurmi boarded a fast train for Chicago, broke the record for the mile and three-quarters, hurried to a railroad station, sped back to New York and ran 2,000 meters in 5 minutes 33 seconds. These figures will stand as a new world's record, as the event never before had been run on a board track. Joie Ray of Chicago is shown above (at left) with Nurmi. The wonderful Finnish runner easily disposed of Ray, his time being 7 minutes 55 2-5 seconds.

DEER BAG IN 1924 REACHES 18,000

ABOUT 8,000 HUNTERS, HOWEVER, FAIL TO REPORT THEIR "KILL"

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Approximately 18,000 deer were killed in Minnesota during the hunting season last November.

This is the estimate of C. T. Hanke, assistant state game and fish commissioner.

Up to date 13,488 such animals have been reported as taken by hunters between Nov. 10 and 20, 1924, but as there were 18,293 big game licenses issued last fall in the state to big game hunters, Mr. Hanke believes that only about two-thirds of the actual number of deer killed have been reported.

In 1922, the last year of an open season for big game in Minnesota, there were 11,425 deer killed. That year there were 25,395 licenses issued of which only 16,000 reported their "kill" under the law, according to the department reports.

Those who have not reported this year, approximately 8,000 hunters, will not get any license in the future because of failure to report, say the officials.

Many Wolves Shot Near Cross Lake by Farmers

Crosby, Minn., Jan. 23.—Farmers of sporting proclivities living about Cross lake, 25 miles north of here, are having such sport as has not been enjoyed for years, according to reports. Success in killing wolves is bringing them money as well as good shooting. A band of timber wolves was attracted to the vicinity of the lake by the presence thereabouts of a large number of rabbits. Dogs are used by most of the hunters along the runways followed by the wolves, which are either chased onto the ice, where men are stationed, or are picked off as they travel the runways.

WILD DUCKS FIND SHELTER IN NORTH

Chippewa, Falls, Wis., Jan. 23.—A flock of about 20 wild ducks has lingered all winter in apparent contentment on the Chippewa river here near the sugar factory. Observers say the ducks are always in evidence early in the morning.

Grand Duke Boris of Russia, Cousin of Late Czar, and Grand Duchess Arrive for Visit to America

The Grand Duke Boris Vladimirovitch and the Grand Duchess, who before their marriage six years ago was Mlle. Zenaide Rachevsky, are shown above on their arrival in New York. He is a brother of Grand Duke Cyril, verbal claimant of the Russian throne. Grand Duke Boris said their visit had no political significance and that they intended to remain only three or four weeks. They will go to Palm Beach.

Nurmi and Ray at Start of Chicago Race in Which Flying Finn Shattered Another World's Record

After a record-breaking performance in New York City, Paavo Nurmi boarded a fast train for Chicago, broke the record for the mile and three-quarters, hurried to a railroad station, sped back to New York and ran 2,000 meters in 5 minutes 33 seconds. These figures will stand as a new world's record, as the event never before had been run on a board track. Joie Ray of Chicago is shown above (at left) with Nurmi. The wonderful Finnish runner easily disposed of Ray, his time being 7 minutes 55 2-5 seconds

DEER BAG IN 1924 REACHES 18,000

ABOUT 8,000 HUNTERS, HOWEVER, FAIL TO REPORT THEIR "KILL"

St. Paul, Jan. 23.—Approximately 18,000 deer were killed in Minnesota during the hunting season last November.

This is the estimate of C. T. Hanke, assistant state game and fish commissioner.

Up to date 13,488 such animals have been reported as taken by hunters between Nov. 10 and 20, 1924, but as there were 18,293 big game licenses issued last fall in the state to big game hunters, Mr. Hanke believes that only about two-thirds of the actual number of deer killed have been reported.

In 1922, the last year of an open season for big game in Minnesota, there were 11,425 deer killed. That year there were 25,395 licenses issued of which only 16,000 reported their "kill" under the law, according to the department reports.

Those who have not reported this year, approximately 8,000 hunters, will not get any license in the future because of failure to report, say the officials.

Many Wolves Shot Near Cross Lake by Farmers

Crosby, Minn., Jan. 23.—Farmers of sporting proclivities living about Cross lake, 25 miles north of here, are having such sport as has not been enjoyed for years, according to reports. Success in killing wolves is bringing them money as well as good shooting. A band of timber wolves was attracted to the vicinity of the lake by the presence thereabouts of a large number of rabbits. Dogs are used by most of the hunters along the runways followed by the wolves, which are either chased onto the ice, where men are stationed, or are picked off as they travel the runways.

WILD DUCKS FIND SHELTER IN NORTH

Chippewa, Falls, Wis., Jan. 23.—A flock of about 20 wild ducks has lingered all winter in apparent contentment on the Chippewa river here near the sugar factory. Observers say the ducks are always in evidence early in the morning.
